

Case Study - Cork Fibreglass, Aylesbury Cork

Aylesbury Ballintemple Cork

Centurion Homes take great pride in building houses where layout and design are paramount, achieving unforgettable quality and finish. Their aim is to build homes which are efficiently thought-out and offer lasting quality.

Conveniently located near Blackrock, Douglas and the city centre, these homes at Aylesbury are built to the highest specification and include a host of energy efficient features. Each house is beautifully finished to reflect this mature and fashionable part of Cork.

When a client buys a Centurion Home, the aim is for the house to be an investment for the future.

Eoin at Cork Fibreglass Ltd is pleased be working with Centurion Homes and is justifiably proud of the high standard of finished work that Dryseal helps him offer. Fitting Dryseal since 2013 Eoin has seen demand for specifications from architects and house builders grow.

Eoin said "Dryseal is proving ever more popular with specifiers and has become my flat roofing system of choice. Noel Barry and Ger Quinlan of Centurion Homes have expressed their delight with the Dryseal work I have completed for them at Aylesbury."

Dryseal Manager Andy Fell said "Eoin has always been very keen to fit the Hambleside Danelaw Dryseal system and regularly exceeds the high standards of finish that we aim to achieve, as shown yet again on this prestigious development, where once again the quality shines through. Eoin's work epitomises the high standards that we aspire to through the Dryseal brand."

Dryseal continues to grow in popularity across Ireland.
